Meet
K-2-4

"You remind me of my girl friend, Olivia Newton Robot," said K-2-4 to Amy LeBlanc. Amy was one several lucky children who participated in a drug awareness program with the robot at the Woburn Street School. K-2-4 is run under a federal grant by Creative Safety Products of Hoboken, New Jersey. Safety Officer Robert Shelley brought the robot to Wilmington's elementary schools on Monday. The students' reaction was wildly enthusiastic.

Three grants received for housing improvements

The Wilmington Housing Authority received a windfall last week in the form of three separate state grants for elderly and low to moderate income housing, according to Ken Dorrance, executive director of the WHA.

In an interview Saturday, Dorrance said he received grants of $138,248 for modernizing present Deming Way units; $9,591 for upgrading eight existing low to moderate houses in town and $50,000 for the construction of 32 new elderly units and eight family units of housing passed at the special town meeting.

The $138,248 will go toward removing old chimneys and replacing them with cupolas for better ventilation. Also, new front doors, new kitchen floor tiles, new kitchen and bathroom faucets, fire alarms, light fixtures, and several new stoves will be installed.

The $9,591 grant will pay for paint, new gutters, and driveways for the scattered - site Chap. 705 homes presently in Wilmington.

The architectural design of the new elderly and family units will be funded by the $50,000 state grant. Bids requests are already out for three different architects. The state board will interview the applicants first for qualifications and quality of work. Then the WHA will interview the applicants to determine if they will do what's best for Wilmington.

"The board has to see that they conform to the demographics of the neighborhood," Dorrance pointed out.

One stipulation on the grant is that both the 32 elderly units and eight homes for low to moderate income families have to be built concurrently, thus "tying everything together." Dorrance stressed that though Deming Way is the favored area for the new elderly housing, no decision had yet been reached on the final location.

As far as the locations voted on for the family housing, two more parcels of land will be bought by the WHA for their assessed value, bringing to 13 the total number of sites available for the eight needed to comply with state requirements.

Dorrance said he's sure the state wouldn't hold up construction or take back the grant if the WHA came up with less than eight buildable sites. The state, according to Dorrance, is very concerned with community involvement and wishes to avoid any confrontation with residents. For this reason, the perk tests (to check the water tables on the eight sites) won't be done until the spring, and Dorrance insisted he "personally" will work with the engineer on King Street, if those sites are considered buildable.

When asked his reaction to the three grants, Dorrance proclaimed he was "overwhelmed," "surprised" and "Thrilled for the elderly." He was also pleased that they received everything they asked for. Usually, when a town requests such a large sum, something is cut.

He attributed the speed with which the funding came through to Wilmington's serious commitment to public housing. He feels that at last all the boards in town are working together toward one goal. He also praised State Representative Jim Miceli and WHA Chairman Kevin McMillan for helping push the grants through.

Dr. Sager resigns

by Arlene Surprenant

One parent described it as displaying "a lot of class."

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Carol Sager forestalled any discussion of her contract by offering her letter of resignation to the school committee at last Wednesday night's meeting. The resignation was accepted by unanimous roll call vote.

Reading before a stunned audience of approximately 125 people, Dr. Sager clearly stated, "I've decided not to seek a new contract." Her resignation was effective at the end of her present contract on June 30, 1985.

Citing "professionally motivated reasons," Dr. Sager said afterward she had reached a mutual agreement with the school committee and is now free to seek other employment. Considering some of the differences she has allegedly had with some board members, Dr. Sager smilingly added that she feels this is "the appropriate time for me to pursue career goals outside of Wilmington."

"I've completed what I've set out to do," she said, adding that she led the school committee through "the difficult times of 2 1/2," was able to hire an "excellent" principal in the person of Paul Fleming, helped push through the high school renovation, and made substantial improvements in some programs.

"I've enjoyed being here for 13 years," she stated, pointing out that she's leaving the next superintendent "a solid educational environment."

Reactions afterward were varied, as parents and educators alike sought to overcome their surprise at the superintendent's unexpected announcement.

"I'm totally surprised she announced it at this time," said former committeeman James Demos, but he added that she has to think of her career.

School board member Tony Accardi conceded he was "more or less pleased." He felt that since Dr. Sager was obviously seeking employment outside of Wilmington, it wouldn't be fair to "hold her," given the situation.

"Though we had our differences, I wish her luck," said Committeeman John Brooks. He added "she was heading in a direction and philosophy I did not share" but he did not elaborate.

Mary Nokes, one of the parents present who had worked closely with Dr. Sager in the past, said she didn't like her resignation at all. She felt strongly that the superintendent had improved school standards and "did a lot for community involvement."

It is a commonly held fact that not all school board members would agree with this assessment. Over the past two years, much controversy had been stirred up in regard to the Swain School and high school principal issues. There was speculation that several school board members might have voted against rehiring Dr. Sager after her contract ran out.

Other comments ranged from the fact that the resignation was "best for her sake" to the fact that Dr. Sager "would easily find other employment because of her many educational qualifications."

Linda McMenimen, one of Dr. Sager's staunchest supporters on the board, felt "it's a sad day for Wilmington," even though she understood the superintendent had to make the best decision for her. Now, according to McMenimen, Wilmington must look ahead.

In the process of looking ahead, Chairman Bridget Zukas said the school committee will probably decide to post the superintendent's position at the October 24 meeting. Members will decide what qualifications the new superintendent should bring to the job and where to advertise for the widest range of applicants.

She affirmed that the board will take its time in order to "make a thorough search for the best possible person."

Aside from Dr. Sager's resignation, a major portion of the evening's agenda was devoted to a query into the number of failures at the West Intermediate School.

Both Linda McMenimen and Phil Fenton expressed strong concern over the percentage of students failing courses in the West as opposed to those in the North. McMenimen had brought up the issue two years ago when one teacher of a pilot honors English class at the West failed a large portion of her students. Even though the course has since been dropped, there is still a high failure rate in her classes as well as in others throughout the system.

"When better than 50 percent fail in midterm or final exam, there is something to investigate," she said.

Chairman Zukas questioned if this particular teacher's standards could be too high.

In her defense, West Intermediate Principal William Fay called her "one of the finest teachers I've had work for me" and one who won't compromise her standards. English Dept. Chairman Mr. Moriarity agreed that the teacher has high standards, but added that her students know what is expected of them at all times. She's the type of teacher who expects her pupils to assume the major responsibility for their own work, he added.

Fenton was disturbed by the large ratio of students from the West, as opposed to the North, who attended recent summer school sessions. It seemed to indicate that one school was getting more advantages than the other, in terms of standards and curriculum, and there was a definite discrepancy there.

Zukas cautioned strongly that they were only concerned with standards. She said she wasn't impressed with a discrepancy between the two schools without accurate facts to back it up.

"This comparison is odious," she angrily retorted to the sounds of loud clapping.

Fenton answered he wouldn't in good conscience be a member of the school board if he didn't at least question the discrepancy between the schools.

Principal Fay attempted to clarify the matter from his point of view.

As principal, he feels his role is one of preparation. In looking at high school records of former students, he reaffirmed that these pupils are "doing very well" and are indeed prepared.

The high percentage of failures at his school may be traced to two factors, he said. First, "one can't ignore the socio-economic differences of the two neighborhoods." Both the North and the West encompass two very different areas of town. According to Fay, he would change the district to get a fairer balance, if he could.

Secondly, there seems to be a lack of parental involvement at the West. For whatever reasons, some parents don't respond to or seem interested in their child's progress and this contributes to a student's failing grade. Some teachers of lower grouped classes reported to Fay that at a recent open house, not one parent showed up in their rooms.

On the positive side, Fay said that he sent out less interims this quarter, is putting greater emphasis on passing and privileges, and he set up a student-faculty court to review discipline problems. Hopefully, these changes will produce "a net result of less failures."

Parent Rosemary Murray was loud in her praise of the West and its policies, observing that "teachers are not miracle workers" and need a lot of help from parents.

After further discussion, Brooks made a motion to form a committee to study the situation. The motion passed unanimously with Zukas commenting that "I personally am very proud of both intermediate schools."

No licenses until January 1

The Tewksbury Board of Health will accept no applications for a license as a masseuse or masseur until after January 1, 1985. The decision was made in the health board meeting on October 15.

At the present time there are two valid licensees in Tewksbury. One is held by a male who has had the license for years and renews it annually. The other was recently awarded to a woman who works in the House of Cappucci, a local and well respected beauty salon.

Health board has bill of $1723 for TB patient

The Tewksbury Board of Health may submit an article to the upcoming special town meeting warrant, for payment of a hospital bill of a Tewksbury man.

He was a patient in the tuberculosis control section of the Middlesex County Hospital during August and may also have been in that section during September, a period for which no bills have as yet been submitted. The daily cost is $107.70, and the August bill amounted to $1,723.20.

Health officer Bill McMenimen told the board that he was hopeful money might be

The board was asked by Chairman Jack Lu to consider a "moratorium" until such time as the Tewksbury Planning Board's proposed Adult Entertainment Zone, which would place strict guidelines on the development of adult entertainment in town, has been acted upon at town meeting.

Health board member Michael Daley did not see any need for a "moratorium" by the board. He pointed out that until the Rules and Regulations regarding massage operations have been adopted by the board, and printed, there can be no further applications. At the present time the Rules and Regulations are in the office of the town counsel undergoing review.

Chairman Lu suggested a policy that no applications be accepted until 90 days after the publication of the Rules and Regulations. Daley was willing to accept that thought, providing that nothing be accepted until January 1. He suggested that there be no vote, just a statement of policy, and member Joan Dunlevy added that it would not be a statement, but just that the board would not give out licenses until January 1.

Hearing scheduled on Lake Street bridge

Representative Jim Miceli announced recently that the first formal hearing for construction of the new Lake Street Bridge will be held on November 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the Wilmington Memorial Library.

The new bridge will replace the current temporary structure. The present bridge was put in place because for many years there was no structure connecting part of Lake Street to fire protection in case mutual aid had to be utilized. Vandals had burned the previous bridge.

The present structure is a one-lane steel bridge, utilized because its installation did not involve any land-taking, a time-consuming process.

The proposed new bridge will be built beside the existing temporary bridge, which will remain in service until the new structure is completed.

The state doesn't think our schools deserve as much money as schools in other districts.

Senator Bob Buell is fighting that nonsense.

Due to an unfair funding formula, many of our schools receive less state aid per student than schools in other areas.

But education is just as expensive here.

That's why Senator Bob Buell favors a new formula that will fund each community on a per student basis. And, from his seat on the Legislative Committee on Education, his strong voice is being heard. In fact, he's already secured additional funding for regional schools. He's also fighting to keep localized control over education, toughen teacher and curriculum requirements, offer teachers the option of early retirement, and upgrade vocational education programs.

And you can be sure that your State Senator will continue to work hard for your children's right to quality education.

Senator Bob Buell

Thefts on Marcia Road

Marcia Road in North Wilmington, at this time is not the place to leave a car out overnight. Night time visitors have been removing radios and other instruments from parked cars. It is happening to more than one family.

Walter Bahia has had three midnight visits. The door handle of his car has been wrenched, the radio stolen and other items taken. The damage, he reports is now over $700.

Other neighbors have also had visits, including a newly married couple. And, on the other side of Woburn Street (and Route 93) there has been midnight visits to cars parked off Gowing Road.

It seems that the visitors are using Woburn Street as an access road.

Open house Tuesday at TMHS

Tewksbury Memorial High School will hold its first of several open houses for this year on Tuesday, October 23 from 7 to 9 p.m. Staff members will be available for individual parental conferences to review each student's academic and social progress to date.

To assist parents in determining which teachers they would like to meet, the school will send out academic progress reports prior to open house.

High school administrators and guidance counselors will be stationed in their offices for parents who wish to discuss any disciplinary problems, school policies, college boards, college and work information or other matters of concern to them.

Parents are also encouraged to tour the school building and view all of the specialized areas of instruction and the "tools" of learning available to their students.

Letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

It has been brought to my attention that a member of a social agency in town has told his agency that the seniors have been receiving so many donations that they did not need the agency's money. Larz, this is not true.

We have received promises of services and promises of some materials. We need money to buy other materials. Most of our cash donations have been made by seniors.

The whole project would be a breeze if the residents of this town would contribute 10 to 25 dollars per household. It would be an investment in their future. We are trying to make a senior center that the whole town can be proud of and use in the future.

The Council on Aging has moved into its temporary location next to Demoulas Market in Wilmington Plaza. It is a great location, and people could drop in to see the site and make their donations. We would appreciate checks from industry. All checks will be acknowledged.

Checks can be made out to: The Buzzell Senior Center Renovation Fund, in care of Wilmington Drop-in Center, Main Street, Wilmington, Ma. 01887.

Thanks for listening, Larz.

Very truly yours
Margaret L. McNeill, Chmn.
Council on Aging

Dear Larz:

I did not know him as David, I knew him as Danny. This was the case of a lot of people in South Tewksbury. Danny or David Shulman's sudden death last Saturday shocked a lot of people, but the ones who really felt the loss were the young people of South Tewksbury.

Danny was a warm, loving, and caring human being who touched the lives of many of South Tewksbury's youths. Over the years he was a friend and counselor to all the youth who came into his store. In this age of isolation and bigness he will be greatly missed, especially by the youth of today and of years passed.

He was a great human being and that is an accomplishment not achieved by many.

Tony Cronin

Dear Larz:

Once in a while you run across a person who genuinely cares about the educational welfare of our children. This is a quality which I feel Dr. Carol Sager possesses. Her door has always been open to the parents of this community, she may not always agree with you, but she will always listen and help whenever she can.

A perfect example of this was when the Shawheen Elementary School was having its septic problems and the parents were ready to picket Town Hall, she took the matter into her own hands and solved the problem saving the town a lot of embarrassment.

Now she is moving on and we will truly be losing a first class superintendent who could never be accused of anything but being the people's superintendent maybe not the school committee's, but always the people's!!

Good luck, Dr. Sager you will be sadly missed.

Linda Scifo

Dear Larz:

My wife and I wish to send a big thank you to our neighbors, friends and organizations from Tewksbury and outside Tewksbury who banded together in helping us in our financial difficulties while reconstructing a new foundation in its entirety due to faulty construction.

We were pleased to learn that from this kind act of charity was born the Tewksbury Good Neighbor Fund, designed to help people in similar circumstances - a catastrophe over which they have no control.

During our 250th anniversary celebration many instances of neighbor helping neighbor was recalled in our past history. This was a fine tradition and as a recipient of this good will, I know it will continue in the future.

In keeping with this fine tradition, many thanks to our wonderful neighbors, the Hoell family, who gave us a home during our three months of being uprooted.

Thanks to all, we are back in our home and happy to be in Tewksbury, Mass.

Tom and Phyllis Conlon and family

Editor's note: Last fall, Tom and Phyllis Conlon discovered the foundation of their home was slowly sinking because improper material was placed under it when it was first constructed. Tom and Phyllis also discovered their homeowner's insurance policy did not cover repairs for the damage created in this situation.

In an effort to show neighborly goodwill, a group of residents and local charity organizations banded together and raised money to offset the cost to repair the home. They recently presented a check to Tom and Phyllis.

The good neighbor fund, set up by those same residents and organizations, will assist others who find themselves in a similar position.

Teamwork makes chamber tick

by Arlene Surprenant

It's teamwork that makes Wilmington's Chamber of Commerce click. It's teamwork in the form of two hard working, savvy ladies who don't miss much that goes on around town. Chamber of Commerce President Nicki Johnson and Executive Director Joan O'Rourke both pull their share of the load, and then some.

It helps that they've been friends a long time and have an easy going relationship that allows them each to anticipate what the other is going to say. It helps that they have similar backgrounds as housewives and mothers who've done their part in raising large families and now have time to pursue their own careers. It definitely helps that they love to be in the thick of things and are knowledgeable on almost every aspect of Wilmington political and community affairs.

Over a light lunch at Rocco's one sunny day, we discussed their views on everything from the Chamber of Commerce's early history to raising children.

For Joan O'Rourke, being executive director is a paid, fulltime job. When asked what her job entailed, she quickly responded with a smile and a nod of agreement from Nicki "Everything."

Actually, hers is a "day-to-day management" of the Chamber of Commerce. She deftly juggles many aspects of the Chamber's daily business such as handling correspondence, contacting new companies, attending ribbon cutting ceremonies, mediating problems, setting up programs for monthly meetings, circulating a business directory to local businesses, and writing and sending out a newsletter to 185 companies. She also sees the Chamber as an information agency and on any given day can be heard answering such phone calls as where the frisbee competition is or when the rodeo will be in town.

For Nicki Johnson, her position as president is an extension of her regular job as assistant treasurer at the local Commercial Bank and Trust Co. She originally became involved with the Chamber of Commerce because of her banking career. She is primarily "responsible for the fiscal security of the Chamber," deciding how much money is needed and how it will be spent. She presides over meetings, comes up with fundraising ideas, writes columns for the newsletter, and represents the Chamber publicly.

The Chamber was formed in 1961. The "driving force" behind the formation of the Chamber of Commerce, according to Mrs. O'Rourke, was Avco. Stan Webber was one of Wilmington's first residents to be involved with the new group.

From 1976-1978, the Chamber was "in a sort of limbo," with declining membership and very few board members.

It should be noted that the Chamber of Commerce provided the "impetus" for two other organizations in town. The Chamber started the Industrial Commission, which evolved into our present Redevelopment Authority. And Lillian Woodside (a member of the Chamber's Board of Directors) pushed for a hospital which evolved into the Regional Health Center in Wilmington.

Today, the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce is receiving even more recognition and has a wider scope of interest than ever before. Of the more than 400 businesses in town, 185 of them belong to the Chamber of Commerce, O'Rourke explained, with a sense of pride. And justly so as she was primarily responsible for the increase in the Chamber's membership, as Nicki Johnson was quick to point out.

Just what does the Chamber of Commerce do? Primarily, it "promotes the business, social, and economic welfare in the town." But more than that, under Nicki Johnson's leadership the past two years, it has tried to bring together local businessmen and town officials to point businesses in the right direction, should they need help.

To this end, the Chamber of Commerce held a recent round table discussion with government officials so that those invited could get to know each other on a "first name basis." The Chamber also hosts an annual wine and cheese reception after town elections for newly elected board members and local businessmen to mingle and get to know each other in a social setting.

Johnson has also tried to publicize how much industry can benefit Wilmington residents. O'Rourke especially feels local merchants have done more than their share in helping organizations through raffle donations while local companies have held internship programs for schools, among other things.

"The Chamber is working for the best interests of both industry and residents," summed up Mrs. O'Rourke.

The big focus right now, and one that generates considerable excitement in both women, is the study being done on the economic impact of the Seabrook Project on Reading Municipal Light.

"This is a sort of 'taxation without representation' situation," states Mrs. Johnson, looking ready for a fight. Since Wilmington customers now use two-thirds of Reading Light's power, it's only fair that it have a say in all decisions. Reading Light says absolutely not. One wonders, with both women so involved, if Reading Light stands a chance.

After a while, the talk moves to more personal matters. Both women attribute their consuming interest in political and community affairs to an early involvement with the League of Women Voters. Johnson points out that the League provides a good background into the inner workings of government. For her, it was a learning experience and a stepping stone to other areas. O'Rourke concurs, adding that she was "always intrigued" by politics and community affairs, from a business point of view.

Not satisfied with just secretarial and banking careers and their work on the Chamber of Commerce, both women also keep up with what's going on with other boards in town and actively support candidates in local campaigns.

Mrs. Johnson is a state appointed member of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority and a member of the board of directors of the Wilmington Community Fund. She also works on the board of directors of the Windrifter Association, a timesharing group in Wolfboro, New Hampshire.

O'Rourke worked as a secretary for the Wilmington Finance Committee for three years and is secretary-clerk to the Redevelopment Authority. She is also a member of the Occupational Health Advisory Council at the Regional Health Center, working with companies on safety, drug prevention, pre-employment health tests, and workmen's compensation cases.

In their spare time, what little they have, their interests are both similar and varied. Travel is high on their list of favorites.

"I like to travel in my Winnebago to Nova Scotia, Florida, or no place in particular," says O'Rourke, while Johnson proclaims all she wants to do when she retires is travel.

Both fondly reminisce about their recent trip to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce annual meeting in Washington D.C. where they had the opportunity to hear Vice President Bush speak. They recall having difficulties trying to fund the trip. Joan adamantly refused to take any money from the Chamber of Commerce budget until she could afford a new memory typewriter she needed for her job. In the end, they were able to work both the typewriter and the trip into the budget.

Other activities which provide a change of pace for both include walking, aerobics, and dancing for Mrs. O'Rourke and swimming and reading (especially historical novels) for Mrs. Johnson.

At this point, the one question in my mind was how do they do it. How could they possible juggle it all? And, more importantly, what words of advice could they give to the rest of us in the midst of raising families and managing part or full time jobs.

"The most important job I've ever had is bringing up my kids," Nicki Johnson states emphatically. She points out that she had never worked until her youngest son went to school. That left many years in between devoted to her large brood of seven children ("Let's see if I can remember their names - Frank, Diane, Kathi, Laurie, Rod, Randy, Fran and Mark"). She credits her oldest daughter with being her "mainstay" and her husband Harry (a gourmet cook who's "getting better about cleaning up") as being very supportive.

She strongly believes that it's impossible to have quality time with your children without the actual time to spend with them. For this reason, she urges young mothers to resist the pressures of both a job and raising a family. Mothers, where possible, should stay home and enjoy their children. She feels it isn't good for today's youngsters to have too many material things. It may be old-fashioned, she said, but today's youngsters need to learn that "life isn't given to you."

"Place your priorities" and go after what's important to you, are Joan O'Rourke's words of advice. You have to be very organized at all times and "Learn to shut the door on things you don't get to."

Most of her life, Joan has followed her own advice. Married at age 18, she and her husband Jim brought up their four children (Tom, Sandi, Michael, and Jay) "for years and years and years."

Though she had always worked part time, she is proudest of the fact that her daughter remembers she was "always home for the kids." She firmly believes that young families shouldn't start out with everything, but should work up to it gradually, as there's plenty of time. She's glad more women are involved in community affairs and workforce, but they should wait until their children are grown and not leave young children in day care centers.

In her own life she's grateful for the "great cooperation" she receives from her husband and youngest son and laughingly states they pitch in when asked, "with the emphasis on asked."

In looking ahead, both women have definite ideas about Wilmington and their own futures.

Mrs. Johnson gets angry thinking about the lack of communication among the various town boards. "It would be great" if the Chamber of Commerce, town board chairmen, the selectmen, and the town manager could hold regular meetings to discuss and solve problems and prove they could all move in the same direction, for a change. She feels, though, that the different committees do have some good regulations which they do their best to enforce.

In her mind, she sees herself as a "Humanist" who's always looking ahead. She doesn't waste time on what might have been, but strives to do her best at all times.

Mrs. O'Rourke feels Wilmington boards could benefit most from citizen input. She points to the example of the Water and Sewer Commission, which is presently getting ideas from interested residents on future expansion proposals. This, she feels, is definitely "a good idea."

For herself, she looks forward to every day and always reminds herself that it's the trying that's important. Always do your best, she philosophizes, and realize that sometimes you win and sometimes you lose.

Principal says new drug policy working

Praising his students as "an outstanding reflection of their mothers and fathers," high school principal Paul Fleming called on those same parents to help him maintain the effectiveness of Wilmington's new drug policy. Principal Fleming and guidance counselors Annette Curley and Elaine Levine spoke before an interested group of parents and members of the Chemical People Task Force at their monthly meeting last Thursday evening.

In her introductory remarks, chairman Anne Linehan pointed out that the task force is a local chapter of a national organization to fight alcohol and drug abuse. With the inception of the tough new drug policy this September, the Wilmington group has garnered nationwide publicity. And perhaps the person most responsible for enforcing that policy is "professional educator" Paul Fleming.

The key to the whole drug program in Wilmington High, in Fleming's view, is love and reinforced feelings of self-worth. Some youngsters today feel they "don't have value as human beings — isn't that sad?" he asked.

He went on to add that if students don't value themselves, they become vulnerable and may eventually give in to peer pressure to try drugs or alcohol. Parents can change all that by not being afraid to let their children know they're loved and important in their family's eye.

A good portion of his off-the-cuff talk dealt with how well the new drug policy is working.

"I have not seen even one youngster moderately high since I've started," he said. Fleming pointed out that closing down the smoking area outside of school, which provided easy access to drugs in the past, has helped eliminate most of the problem. The hiring of monitors to reinforce no smoking in the bathroom areas and the excellent cooperation he's received from the school board, police department, and his entire staff also played a part in keeping Wilmington High drug free so far.

He relayed how overwhelmed he was with all the publicity on opening day. He had received approximately 39 phone calls from the media wanting to find out more about the policy. Most of them questioned whether taking an aspirin would really be treated as a serious offense. He remembered thinking "What am I involved with here?" especially when he saw reporters camped out on the common across the street.

Paul Fleming is no stranger to drug usage and its tragic results. In his former job at Plymouth - Carver High in Plymouth he saw more than his share of students involved with marijuana and other drugs. At least 40 percent of the student body were "hard users" and a majority were experimenters. Beer drinking there became phenomenal and there were some scary results from combining "grass" and hard liquor.

Fleming stressed that in fairness to the youngsters he sees during the school day, in Wilmington, they are a decent group of young people. Because of their support of the changes he's implemented, he almost feels "duty bound" to give them more freedom and plans to set up a program of senior and junior privileges.

Bookcase donated

A bookcase for displaying drug and alcohol information was donated to the Wilmington Memorial Library last week by the Wilmington Chemical People Task Force. The bookcase was made by Bill Finer, an industrial arts teacher at the West Intermediate School. From left, Librarian Philip Merriam, Finer, Chemical People Chairman Liz Wheeler, Safety Officer Robert Shelley and Juvenile Officer Robert Spencer.

Both Mrs. Curley and Mrs. Levine reinforced Fleming's belief that the new policy is working. Mrs. Curley said that though there hasn't been a drug related problem so far, she has talked "around the issue" with students who may have experimented on weekends. She added that it was important for parents and teachers to keep the lines of communication open to reduce peer pressure and consequent problems.

Mrs. Levine, a former group therapist with Project Reach-

Out last year, agreed that the best step Fleming took was to eliminate the outside smoking area. She also added that the fear of being involved with the police has stopped many youngsters from using drugs during the school day.

Northeast Regional Police Institute starts second year

Wilmington and Tewksbury police officers have started their second year of in-service training at the Northeast Regional Police Institute in Tewksbury. The Institute was formed last year by training officers from the local area. A first-ever pilot program for Massachusetts, it was well received by the 700 police officers attending classes last year.

This year more than 1400 officers, from patrolmen to chiefs, will attend the one week program. Thirty local towns and cities ranging from Sudbury and Concord to Haverhill and Chelsea are sending officers for a one week refresher course in all areas of law enforcement.

Additional specialty courses will be run throughout the year in such areas as specialized accident investigation, crime scene management supervision, crime prevention and many others.

Local officers on the board of directors include Capt. Emile Steele, Billerica as chairman of the board; Deputy Chief Bernard Nally of Wilmington as secretary of the board; Lt. John Mackey of and Officer Bill Latta of Tewksbury on the site and building committee.

Jannie Wolff performs in college play

Jannie Wolff, daughter of Mitzi Wolff of Wilmington and Ronald Wolff of Quincy, performed in Dusa, Fish, Stas & Vi, October 12 and 13 at Chatham College in Pittsburgh. A sophomore theatre major at Chatham, she is a 1983 graduate of Wilmington High School.

The play, by Pam Gems, was a long run success in London. It features four roommates struggling to reconcile their personal freedom with the role assigned to women in contemporary society.

Jannie played the role of Fish, an upper-class political activist fighting to keep her traditional boyfriend. The other characters are Dusa, a recently divorced mother fighting to keep her children; Stas, a physical therapist who moonlights as a hustler to finance her study of marine biology; and Vi, an anorexic flower child. The play is directed by Dr. Patricia Montley, chairperson of the Chatham College Theatre Department.

Chatham College is a small, selective women's college specializing in liberal education with career preparation.

Camp Fire offers clubs for kindergarteners

Does your child love to pretend, cook, explore and make things? Then your kindergartener would love to join the Camp Fire Sparks Club.

Registration for Wilmington boys and girls attending kindergarten this year will be held on Friday, October 19 at 7 p.m. at St. Thomas of Villanova Hall. Parents and their children are invited to attend to discover more about the exciting new Sparks program. Clubs of kindergarteners will also be formed at the meeting.

Camp Fire Sparks join their friends in special activities which are designed to nurture the curiosity and creativity of the young child. Each Sparks Club includes four to six boys and girls. This small group setting encourages the kindergarten children's budding social skills.

Each child in a Sparks Club has opportunities to be a "star" and grow in self-esteem. During their weekly club meetings, the boys and girls play and sing and complete a program project for which they receive a Sparks sticker. After exploring a particular activity area for several weeks, each child celebrates the group's achievement by receiving a Sparks patch for their official award tab.

Sparks activity areas throughout the year include: Creative arts, dramatic play, cooking and outdoors. An adult volunteer, usually a mother of father of one of the Sparks, provides the caring leadership for the small group of children.

The Sparks leader is provided with eight pre-designed, flexible meeting plans for each of the four exploration topics. Sparks leaders meet together when it is time to introduce each new activity area. This orientation meeting provides the Sparks leaders with the support, skills and confidence to provide quality experiences for the young children in their groups.

Mark your calendar and plan to attend the Wilmington Sparks registration night, Friday, Oct. 19 at 7 p.m. at St. Thomas of Villanova Hall.

For additional information concerning Camp Fire or the new Sparks Program, please contact Renzil Rongone at 658-5584 or Stephanie Meegan at 658-3391.

Hospital trustees oppose DUI unit

Editor's note: Following is a letter sent to Gov. Michael Dukakis by the Board of Trustees at the Tewksbury Hospital.

Dear Governor Dukakis:

The Board of Trustees of Tewksbury Hospital voted on Tuesday, October 2, 1984, to oppose the placing of the DUI (Driving under the Influence) Program at Tewksbury Hospital.

The Board recognizes the need for such a program in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and realizes that you have made this one of your administration's top priorities. The Board of Trustees, however, after careful consideration of all the facts pertaining to the program, voted not to support this program for Tewksbury based on the following:

Tewksbury Hospital has been accredited by the Joint Commission of Accreditation of Hospitals (since 1956), and is recognized as one of the leading public chronic disease hospitals in New England. The thought of this fine institution returning to a catchall, as it was known more than 50 years ago, would be a step backward.

At the present time there is widespread community opposition to placing the DUI Program at Tewksbury Hospital. Specifically, the Tewksbury Board of Selectmen, Friends of Tewksbury Hospital, our State Representative, James Miceli, staff employees at the hospital, School Committee, hospital patients and their family members, various civic leaders and abutments. This opposition is well organized and prepared to express its opposition at the appropriate forum.

Presently, there is a waiting list of over 90 seriously ill people who have applied for admission to the Tewksbury Hospital. Taking care of these ill people, at a hospital facility designed to meet their special needs, is of paramount concern to the Trustees.

In closing, The Board of Trustees shares your concern for a DUI Program, but is of the opinion that you share our pride in Tewksbury Hospital, and with your help, it will continue to be recognized as a chronic disease hospital for the confinement of the chronically ill.

Very truly yours,
John Ryan, Chmn.

Regional Health Center presents talk on family communication

"Family Relationship: Building Up Communication Before Breaking Down" will be the topic of a free presentation at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington on Monday, Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m.

John H. Heckler, Ph.D., psychologist, will be the featured speaker, along with a panel of male and female psychologists.

They will discuss the importance of family communication in building strong and trusting relationships before there is a communication breakdown.

Because "generation gaps" often exist in families, family problems often worsen because they are not dealt with until a crisis occurs.

Dr. Heckler earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in psychology at Syracuse University and his doctorate in clinical psychology at the University of Wisconsin.

As a licensed clinical psychologist, Dr. Heckler has more than 15 years of experience in counseling adolescents and families and is certified as a school psychologist.

This program is highly recommended for all parents, especially those with teenagers. To reserve a space, please call 657-3910, ext. 567.

Would you hire a fox to guard the chickens?

The insurance companies would like you to pay a bit more for your car insurance.

One hundred million dollars more in 1985.

Massachusetts already has the highest car insurance costs in the nation.

Not because we're such bad drivers.

But because the insurance companies headquartered in Massachusetts have had good legislators.

Sen. Bob Buell has been one of their best friends.

He's stood silent and helped kill a bill that would have studied the whole rate structure.

He's continually sponsored bills designed to help the insurance industries at your expense.

His campaign reports during the last two years show more than 30 contributions from insurance brokers and from three different insurance company PACs.

And he's a full-time licensed insurance broker, with offices five minutes from the State House.

Would you like to pay less...much less...for your car insurance?

Don't ask Bob Buell to help you.

A super sports September

WHS teams break record

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

Wilmington has reason to cheer a performance by its high school athletes that comes as no surprise considering the quality athletes and coaches involved in keeping the Wildcats competitive in the tough Merrimack Valley Conference.

The Wilmington High School

varsity athletic teams established a record WHS winning percentage during the month of September, with the six varsity teams compiling a 20-6-1 slate for a winning percentage of 74 percent.

The Wildcats not only hold their own, but defeat MVC schools with much larger student enrollments. There are 862 students that attend grades 11, 12 and 13 at WHS. Traditionally, Wilmington along with Dracut has the smallest enrollment in the conference while Chelmsford, Billerica, Methuen and Andover have dominated in terms of the number of athletes they field on each team.

There was not a losing WHS record to be found this past September. The football (3-0-0), field hockey (5-2-0), volleyball (4-1), soccer (5-2-0), boys' cross country (2-1-0) and girls' cross country (1-0-1) all finished the month on the plus side.

Director of Athletics Jim Gillis, a believer in the traditional benefits of a well tuned sports program and a former coach, has put together a solid group of coaches who obviously take great pride in their work. That varsity staff (with able junior varsity and freshman assistance) includes Ed Harrison (football), Jan Cassidy (field hockey), Doug Anderson (volleyball), Dick Scanlon (soccer) and the venerable Frank Kelly, coach of both the boys' and girls' cross country squads.

Wildcats tenth

The Wilmington High School football squad is ranked tenth in the Division II ratings following Saturday's tough last minute 15-15 tie at Billerica.

Lowell (fourth), Methuen (fifth) and Dracut (sixth) are the other Merrimack Valley Conference clubs in the Division II top ten.

The Wildcats now play Chelmsford, Methuen, Lowell and Dracut on consecutive weeks before catching a 'breather' Thanksgiving morning when they host Tewksbury.

Mike goes wide

Wildcat halfback Mike Ingersol (31) turns upfield and looks for a block early in the 15-15 tie at Billerica Saturday. The still unbeaten Wildcats host Chelmsford Saturday afternoon.

Indian downed

Wilmington linebacker Dante DeMarco (79) latches on to a Billerica running back while teammate Ken DeYoung (79) rumbles in to lend a hand.

Wildcats end Tiger streak

Wilmington High School senior Kristen Butt (8) takes a whack at the ball before a Tyngsboro player can gain control. Kristen and the Wildcats roared to a 3-1 Merrimack Valley Conference field hockey victory to hand the Tigers their first loss of the season.

Wilmington hustle

Rene Allaby dives face first in an effort to make a play for Wilmington in Tuesday afternoon's MVC field hockey showdown with previously unbeaten Tyngsboro. Rene's hustle paid off in helping her team to a victory.

Wildcats knock off Tyngsboro

Wilmington High School's field hockey girls came back after a tough loss in their previous game to score three second half goals and knock off previously unbeaten Tyngsboro, 3-1 in a Merrimack Valley Conference showdown at Wilmington Tuesday afternoon.

The win vaults coach Jan Cassidy's Cats into the thick of the Small School race for first, as Tyngsboro slips to 10-1-1, while Wilmington improves to 9-2-1 on the season.

Reporting scores

Scores and statistics can be called into the Town Crier sports department Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Goalkeeper Kristen Pepe was tough in the second half when with four minutes to play Tyngsboro broke through for its lone goal of the game. Seniors Kristen Butt and Janet Crowley were in the thick of the action along with juniors Rene Allaby (superb hustle), Marion Cushing and Lisa Cutone.

Donnelly helps UMass to national ranking

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

Megan Donnelly of Wilmington, a junior at the University of Massachusetts, is one of the major reasons that coach Pam Hixon's field hockey team is nationally ranked.

An All-American a year ago, Megan anchors a UMass defense that has recorded seven shutouts enroute to its 9-1-0 record. UMass has won nine straight after a 2-1 season opening loss to North Carolina.

"Megan controls the entire defense," offers coach Hixon. "She covers a lot of ground, and that keeps the pressure off our goaltender."

Donnelly has been a member of the United States squad for the past three years. She plays centerback and is the hitter on the penalty corner.

"Megan has one of the hardest shots I've ever seen. Her shot is one of her strongest attributes," said Hixon after another four star performance by the former Wilmington High School three sport star.

Donnelly has scored five goals and added an assist for UMass so far this season.

An anthropology major, Megan is a former Boston Globe High School Athlete of the Year. She is a graduate of Wilmington High School and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Donnelly of Wilmington.

Woods honored at Springfield
Wilmington's Dave Woods was recently honored as the Springfield College Athlete of the Week for his performance in the team's 27-13 victory over Albany State. Tewksbury girls outstanding

The Tewksbury junior varsity field hockey team played an outstanding game Friday against Dracut that ended in a 0-0 tie. The aggressive defense of Chris Kearns, Kim Dziadosz and Karen Toth allowed Tewksbury to keep possession of the ball for most of the game. Forwards Kelly Lightfoot, Jill Kutcher, Jessica Mitter and Diane Sanborn fired several shots on goal that were stopped by a tired Dracut goalie. Links Kris Romano and Jean Muise also added to the exceptional play of the Redmen.

Rookie goalie Sue Koumantzels came up with some key saves. The tie brings the Redmen record to 1-5-4.

Discount tickets

Set to attack

A Tyngsboro player slaps at the ball in midair as a pair of WHS girls move in Tuesday. The Wildcats won this key contest, 3-1. See story, other photos on page eight.

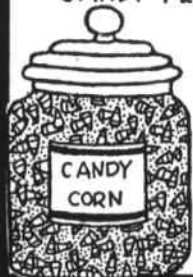

Every week in our office we have a drawing for the children who come in with clean teeth and a smile on their face. The winner receives a stuffed animal. Our lucky winner this week is:

WILLIAM E. BERRY JR.

William is the 10 year old son of William and Linda Berry of Pinehurst Avenue, Billerica. He attends the Ditson School and is interested in fishing, riding on roller coasters and collecting matchboxes.

Best game

Tewksbury junior quarterback Rob Aylward (10) played his best game of the season Friday at Lowell, completing 19 of 28 passes for 138 yards and one touchdown. Unfortunately, the Redmen fell to their fourth defeat of the season, 20-12.

Fay, Lightfoot lead C' squad

Quarterback Bill Fay threw two touchdown passes, one a 75 yarder to halfback Tim Lightfoot, as the Tewksbury C' Pop Warner squad blanked Methuen, 19-0 in action Sunday afternoon.

"We had just come off a tough loss to Chelmsford the past week, and the boys just rose to the occasion," noted head coach Russ Cabral.

Tewksbury started fast in the first quarter when Fay found Sean Mackey with a 20 yard touchdown strike. The conversion failed as Tewksbury led, 6-0.

The score rose to 13-0 in the second quarter as Lightfoot rambled 75 yards to paydirt with a Fay aerial. Mackey busted over for the extra point and a 13-0 margin. The winners closed the scoring with a 24 yard Mackey TD run in the third quarter.

Mackey finished with 105 yards rushing to go along with his two touchdowns. Brian Cooper also contributed to the win with some tough runs late in the game.

Offensive linemen Paul Sinkus and Jason Anzivino played solid games up front to spark the offense. Defensively, the squad was led by Todd Bairstow, who caused a fumble that was

Pop Warner National Championship

A key question being asked throughout the Pop Warner Football Conference of Eastern Massachusetts is not only which teams will win the local championships, but also will one of those teams qualify to play in Pop Warner Football's National Championships, also known as the Russell Athletic Bowl.

The determining factor as to "who will play" is academics.

If one of Pop Warner Football Conference of Eastern Massachusetts' champions, be it a team from Arlington, Charlestown, Chelsea, East Boston, Everett, Malden, Medford, Newton, Revere, Somerville, Billerica, Chelmsford, Dracut, Lawrence, Lowell, Methuen, Sudbury, Tewksbury, Brookline, Burlington, Lexington, Melrose, Newton North, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Waltham, Watertown, Woburn, Beverly, East Lynn, Salem, Saugus, Swampscott, or West Lynn is selected, it will be because that team has the highest scholastic average of all teams in its' division of play in its 'tier.'

Pop Warner headquarters has divided the country in to two 'tiers': North and South. From each tier, the Peeewe, Junior Midget and Midget local champions with the highest scholastic average will play for the National titles.

The concept of a championship encompassing excellence both on and off the football field is a foundation of the Pop Warner program, whose philosophy during its' 25 national years has been that academics and athletics go hand-in-hand. Pop Warner's individual and team honors always take into account accomplishments in the classroom and not just those on the gridiron.

Planning Board changes policy on plans

The Wilmington Planning Board, on advice of town counsel, refused to sign a Land court plan Tuesday night in its meeting. Such an event has never happened before. The plan has been submitted by Attorney Mike Tyner for a client, and was a plan of land in North Wilmington, off Oak Street — two house lots, one of about 19,000 square feet, and the second of about 15,000 square feet.

The land involved is in an R60 zone — 60,000 square feet required for a house lot.

Last week the planning board heard a board of appeals case in which the Webber Amendment was invoked. A 10,000 square foot lot of land, off McDonald Road, was also in an R60 zone.

There was plenty of conversation, Tuesday evening about those lots of land. The board arrived at an opinion, with reference to the lot of land off McDonald Road, that there was no hardship about that piece of land, but there was a hardship about the house on the remaining property. That, the members felt, should have been the basis of the arguments to be presented.

They have decided to take up the task with the board of appeals. It should have been heard on the basis of a house being only a foot and a half from a lot line. It was being heard for the wrong people.

It was not the 10,000 foot lot that was the hardship. Chairman Tony Gentile said. It was the owner of the house who was having the hardship, in a house only a foot and a half from a lot line.

Several more cases are coming up in the same area, and based on the same argument — the Webber Amendment. That amendment says that a legal house lot in 1955 remains a legal house lot.

Residents from the area have been calling the planning board on the telephone. There could be quite a crowd at the coming hearing before the board of appeals.

A third instance, for the planning board, Tuesday night involved the proposed sale of a 10,000 square foot lot of land off Alrich Road, to an abutter. Richard F. Johnson of Mozart Avenue is asking the selectmen to sell him an adjoining town owned lot of land on Hillside Avenue, a so-called "paper" street.

The planning board objected unanimously. House lots like that, they felt, should be sold in the town meeting.

If that lot gets sold, Chairman Tony Gentile said, everybody and his brother will be down to buy a house lot.

Bill Hooper pointed out that the town meeting empowered the selectmen to sell small 25-foot lots of land to abutters. This, he thought, was getting too much.

The Land Court plans, it must be reported, are a special case. For years the planning board has signed such plans, which are designed to absolutely prove ownership of land. The board signed after endorsing said plans with a stamp reading "For Land Court purposes only. No determination has been made on zoning."

The Town Engineer reported to the planning board Tuesday night, that the town counsel feels those plans are being used for other than Land Court purposes.

Hence, from now on, the Town Counsel will rule on each such plan submitted to the planning board, before it signs. Or, so it seems.

Cabbage patch cash

Two Wilmington residents were among those who attended the recent WBZ Farmstand. Louise Clark and Mary Thompson are joined by WBZ-TV-4 newsmen Randy Price. The farmstand sold fruits and vegetables donated by local growers, raising more than $12,000 in only five and one-half hours. The money all went to Children's Hospital.

Pamela Davis named Student of the Month

Pamela Davis of Pershing Street has been named as the October Student of the Month at Wilmington High School. A member of the National Honor Society and the Math Honor Society, she has been the recipient of several awards, including outstanding achievement awards in physical education, foreign languages, and clinical laboratory; Pi Mu Epsilon Award from the University of Lowell, and a citation from the Mass. House of Representatives for an internship program. An honor roll student every term, she holds five athletic letters and one academic letter. She is active on the Prom Committee, Winter Track, Spring Track, and is the editor of the school yearbook. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Davis.

Towns seek power on Reading Light board

Selectmen from Wilmington and North Reading will seek a meeting with the Reading Board of Selectmen, with hopes of developing a better relationship with the Reading Municipal Light Dept. They would like representation on the RMLD board for towns buying power from Reading.

In a joint meeting Monday night, the two boards listened to Jeff Bernstein of Bernstein and Smick, a law firm retained by the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce. Bernstein said that customers of Reading Light faced significant increases because of that board's investment in the Seabrook nuclear plant. That investment was through Reading Light's participation in MMWEC, the Mass. Municipal Wholesale Electric Co.

The picture could have been worse, Bernstein said. In 1979, RMLD voted not to increase its investment in the Seabrook project. Other towns are in a worse situation, he said. Hudson, for instance, faces a tripling of its rates.

Because the municipal power companies have no stockholders to go to, their only option is to increase their rates in order to pay the enormous Seabrook debt, said Bernstein.

Bernstein said he had requested rate information from RMLD, but that it had not yet been provided. Under the Freedom of Information Act, RMLD had ten days to respond. Their response was a letter saying that the matter had been referred to the law firm representing MMWEC.

Among the options mentioned in the meeting were a change in the legislation empowering Reading Light to sell power to the other towns. One avenue would be to create a power district made up of the four towns, Reading, North Reading, Lynnfield and Wilmington.

Wilmington could also withdraw from Reading's system and start its own municipal light department, Bernstein said, but he did not recommend this.

Another possibility would be for the outside towns to have input on Reading's board. To date, though, that board has held a closed stance.

Nicki Johnson, president of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, along with Wilmington town officials, met with the RMLD board several months ago. The meeting produced no progress. Since the, the Chamber of Commerce has proceeded with the study of the RMLD.

Senior fair, November 3

The arts and crafts senior fair will be held at the Senior Center (previously occupied by DeCrosa Florist) on Saturday, Nov. 3 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. A few more seniors arrived last week to help make articles which will be sold at the fair.

Anyone with a little time on Tuesday and Thursday mornings is urged to go to the center and help. It is the hope of seniors that this will be the most successful fair yet. Those who prefer to make articles at home will also be appreciated. Many mittens in all sizes are needed. Last year the fair sold out of all mittens early. All money from the fair will go toward the renovation of the Buzzell School.

Exercise classes will begin next Monday and Wednesday from 9 to 10 a.m. in the Senior center. There is a large, smoke-free private area for the classes. These classes are oriented to healthy seniors or those recuperating from heart ailments, strokes, arthritis or cancer.

Hearing aid advisor

Fred, the hearing aid advisor will be at the center Wednesday, Oct. 17 from 9 a.m. to noon to check the hearing of seniors and the efficiency of present hearing aids. Some hearing aids which appear to be working poorly could just need an adjustment.

Dr. Leavitt, Friday morning

Podiatrist Dr. Leavitt will be at the Senior Center Friday morning Oct. 19 from 9 to noon. He will check and treat ailments of the feet. Seniors are advised to take along Medicare, Medex or Medicaid cards.

Flu and pneumonia shots

Abbie will give flu and pneumonia shots at the Center Thursday, for those who have called the Center in advance. She will also be giving the diabetes test and checking blood pressures on Thursday, Oct. 18 starting at 1:30 p.m.

Health clinics

The health clinics have been made available by the Council on Aging for senior citizens for two reasons: for convenience and to alleviate some of the minibus rides to out-of-town doctors.

Fuel assistance

Applications for fuel assistance are being made out at the Center by appointment only. Those who have an income that falls below $8,715, one person; or $11,760 for a couple should call the center. Seniors are advised to have a copy of their checks, or a letter from the bank in which checks are deposited. S.S.I. recipients will qualify.

Thanks

A grateful thanks is extended to all the seniors who made donations to the Buzzell Senior Citizen Renovation Fund last week. Knowing that so many seniors are helping makes the work easier.

Thanksgiving dinner-dance

The Tewksbury-Wilmington Elks annual Senior Citizen Thanksgiving Dinner-Dance will be held in the Elks Hall Thursday evening, November 15. Sinups for this social will begin Friday morning, October 19.

Open House at Austin Prep on November 4th

An Open House will be held at Austin Preparatory School, 101 Willow St., Reading, on Sunday, Nov. 4 from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Students will be present to serve as guides. Representatives of the registrar's office and business office will be available to answer questions. All interested boys and their parents and friends are invited to attend. The school's entrance and scholarship exam will be given on Saturday, Nov. 17 at 8:30 a.m., and again on Sat., Dec. 1, at the same time. All applicants must take the Austin exam in person at the school.

Austin Prep is a modern secondary school dedicated to meeting the academic, cultural, and athletic needs of young men in the average to superior range of intellectual ability. Boys who have successfully completed eight years of elementary school are eligible for admission to the ninth grade. Students who wish to enter grade 10 may also apply for admission. As a Catholic educational institution Austin teaches and follows Christian principles, but admits as students boys of all faiths.

The school was founded in 1961 by the Order of St. Augustine, which had been requested by Richard Cardinal Cushing to provide high quality secondary education for the North Shore area. The Augustinian Fathers also run Merrimack College and Villanova University.

Austin Prep offers a college preparatory curriculum. Last year 96 percent of the senior class entered college immediately upon graduation, and 90 percent were accepted at their first or second choice college. The school's phase system, based on the idea that the curriculum should fit the needs and abilities of the individual student, allows Austin to offer courses at different ability levels, and to provide a wide selection of electives to complement required courses. Upperclassmen may take college-level Advanced Placement courses in American history, European history, calculus, chemistry, English and several foreign languages. Entering freshmen have a choice of five languages: Russian, Latin, Italian, French or Spanish. The school offers several courses in computer programming. This fall Austin dedicated a new computer laboratory with 26 Acorn terminals which can be used independently or in a network. These computers have dual-language capability, which will allow Austin to prepare students for the Advanced Placement exam in computer programming.

A wide variety of extra-curricular activities supplements Austin's academic programs by providing social and cultural enrichment. There are organizations for chess, journalism, computers, photography, physical conditioning and foreign languages. During the past school year the foreign language clubs organized trips to Russia, France and Italy.

Austin Prep sponsors inter-scholastic teams in almost every major sport. The school is represented in league play by teams in football, basketball, hockey, skiing, baseball, track, cross country, golf and tennis. There are also club or intramural programs in softball, basketball, lacrosse and cross country skiing.

A Sail on Buzzards Bay

PART TWO

I walked by a big water hole, like the ones back home where as a kid on hot summer afternoons I tried lazily to hook tadpoles. I paused, thinking how out of place the water hole would be in the center of my home town; yet here it was just another picture-perfect fixture to the unhurried setting. Across the street there was another sign, this one expertly hand-carved on time-wood and shaded by a huge oaken tree:

Bosworth House

Meals, Rooms — Since 1889 Another old woman, putting along in a noisy golf cart, drove by me. To the right of the Bosworth House was the island post office. The building looked like all the other grey shingled saltbox abodes on the island, except for an American flag which hung motionlessly out front and a white life preserver with the words Cuttyhunk Post Office, which attached to the side of the structure. I leaned against the big tree to cool off, wiping perspiration from my brow. It may have been chilly out on the bay; not so on land.

Two islanders strolled past me and into the post office. I heard muffled voices inside but couldn't make out what they were saying. For a long time nobody came out. Perhaps visiting the post office was one of the few forms of entertainment on such an isolated spot. A seaplane zoomed low overhead toward a landing — perhaps on Cuttyhunk Pond. Undoubtedly bringing the islanders their supplies. I looked across the street from the post office toward a white house with a little addition connected to it. A hand painted sign over the door said general store.

I wandered up to see the Bosworth House to see if I could find somebody who would give me information about the island. A sign, scribbled with chalk on a blackboard next to the front door, which was locked, read: Need a room? Find Howard and Ellen. I peered through a window. The place looked unopened for nonseasonal business.

Where do I find Howard and Ellen, I muttered to myself.

"Can I help you with anything?"

I turned abruptly. A young, olive skinned woman, perhaps twenty, and evidently an islander, stood at the bottom stairs leading to the restaurant's entrance.

"You Ellen?" I asked, smiling and pointing to the blackboard.

"Nope, but you look lost."

She brushed long sandy hair back from her eyes with her hand, then toyed with a strand that drooped softly over her shoulder.

"Not exactly. I was looking for somebody to point out the sights on the island."

"Well, there's really not much worth seeing."

"There's got to be something to this place," I genially insisted. "How about that windmill up on the hill? How do I get up there?"

Cruising on the Royal Caribbean Sun Viking

A PANORAMIC VIEW of the "Scotland District," on the northeast coast of Barbados, West Indies, looking toward the Atlantic Ocean.

Barbados — A Different Island

During a delightful relaxing day at sea aboard the Royal Caribbean Sun Viking enroute to Barbados, we sailed along the coast of Granada and joked that we were in the "war zone." As if in answer to our thoughts, a large army helicopter circled overhead checking us out. While at sea we had opportunity to participate in several "ship-shape" activities, read, swim, stretch out in the warm sun on a deck chair, and had an interesting visit to the Bridge to learn a little about the instruments which are used to navigate the ship. We sailed into Barbados harbor early the next morning.

On his many trans-Atlantic crossings Columbus discovered almost all of the Caribbean islands but he missed the most easterly, Barbados. Although the Portuguese put Barbados on the map in the early 1500's, the island came under English rule in 1639 where it remained until 1966 when it gained independent status within the Commonwealth.

However, its Portuguese name was left unchanged with legend telling us that the name came from the banyan tree whose roots hung from the branches like a man's long beard. Everything else is very British. This heavily fortified island of 166 square miles was

Foster & Foster expands school

Craig A. Foster, President of Foster & Foster, Inc., announced recently the expansion of the firm's License Exam School in the Reading area. The school, which is now directed by L. Charles Allard, Treasurer of Foster & Foster, has been in existence since 1977 and was licensed by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Private Education in 1979. Since its beginning, the school has prepared hundreds of students to pass the rigorous state examination given monthly by the Board of Registration of Real Estate Brokers.

The thirty hour program covers all aspects of real estate law necessary to pass the exam including those laws peculiar to the State of Massachusetts. In addition, several segments are devoted to mastering real estate mathematics to those in need of such review.

Mr. Foster attributes the success of the program to the goals established early in the school's history — To maintain a small classroom environment with the physical plant of a real estate office and, most importantly, conducted by those who are both knowledgeable and active in the field of real estate sales with Foster & Foster. Many of the Foster & Foster instructors are former teachers and all are approved by the Department of Education. The teaching staff is often supplemented by local attorneys who practice real estate law as a specialty.

Mr. Foster further stated that the decision to open a real estate school in Reading is a result of increased interest in the program by area residents desiring a more convenient location. In the past, the classes have been held in Acton, Mass. To accommodate the school, Foster & Foster has taken over the entire building at 258 Main Street, Reading which houses the Bjorkman & Lann Division of Foster & Foster.

Both evening and day time programs are being offered in October. Further information and a class schedule may be obtained by calling Foster & Foster License School Headquarters at 263-3303.

POEM

AUTUMN
The leaves are turning now
Autumn's settling in...

The air's much brisker now
Daytime's shorter, too.

I want to stop
And yawn my way

Through each
Warm noontime hour.

I need to walk the forest paths
And glimpse
The lengthening shades of Autumn settling in.

never invaded or captured, unlike the other Caribbean islands. In its Old World charm and grace, Barbados has attained a reputation for secure and stable development under a parliamentary democracy.

Trafalgar Square, the heart of its busy capital Bridgetown, is surrounded by London-style government buildings and dominated by a statue of the famous Englishman, Lord Nelson. In Queen's Park you can find the former residence of the general commander of the British troops in the West Indies, and there are well preserved Edwardian mansions, towns and parishes bearing English names, and duty free shops filled with British imports. English is the official language while the natives speak a lilting patois.

After unsuccessful tobacco and cotton crops, the English developed a large plantation system in the 17th century for sugar cane which today still remains an important industry along with its by-product, the smooth Barbados rum.

Barbados also differs from most of the other Caribbeans because it originated from coral reefs rather than volcanic rock.

Vibrant with bouganvilleas, poinsettias, oleanders, hibiscus, to name but a few of the beautiful flowers, the gently rolling hillsides and fields combine to form a garden land laid out in neat plots for sugar fields and small vegetable farms.

The quaint little houses in the villages, reminiscent of a scene from "Porgy and Bess," are neatly fenced and landscaped. The countryside is dotted with churches, numbering in all about 75, of many denominations but mostly Anglican.

Blessed with a permanent summer climate with the ever present trade winds providing nature's air conditioning, Barbados is an ideal tourist attraction for many Americans. All the beaches with their golden sands are open to the public and offer a choice of swimming in secluded coves on the Caribbean west coast or a plunge into the rolling surf on the more rugged Atlantic side. Villas, large and small luxury hotels, and inns and guesthouses provide 13,000 hotel beds for the important tourist industry employing 9000 directly and many more indirectly.

We visited the Paradise Beach Hotel not far from Bridgetown for lunch on the terrace overlooking the water. This is a 12-acre resort with tropical gardens, two-level swimming pool, restaurant, water sports and entertainment, just one of the many such luxurious vacation retreats along Barbados' miles of coastline.

During a briefing session with members of the local press and government officials, we learned that light manufacturing, especially of electronic components, is now an important industry in Barbados. An excellent education system on which one-quarter of the budget is spent and which includes college and technical school training results in a very high rate of literacy and well-trained workforce. Although affected by world economics, they have faced high unemployment but have kept inflation down. They now feel that recovery is starting to show an upturn. What they lack in natural resources they make up for in human resources. With their large deep water port which can accommodate many ships and freighters they hope to attract new industry.

One of the island's famous personalities is actress Claudette Colbert, a resident since 1960, who calls Barbados a paradise where modern living combines with an atmosphere of old-fashioned values. President and Mrs. Reagan visited here in 1982.

Returning to the Sun Viking that evening we had an opportunity to sample flying fish, a local delicacy, which was featured on the menu along with English specialties. After the evening entertainment and movie, a Caribbean buffet was a popular spot at midnight.

Childhood

Fulton, at age 15, began studying harp and quickly moved on to Juilliard, the Academy of Music in Vienna, the Mozarteum in Salzburg and classes in Sienna, Italy. His teachers included Kajetan Attl (harpist, San Francisco Symphony,) Edward Vito (NBC Symphony under Toscanini,) Herbert Jelinek (Vienna Philharmonic and Vienna Opera,) and world-famous virtuoso Nicanor Zabaleta.

Major positions followed soon after his schooling: principal positions with the Istanbul Symphony and Honolulu Symphony and (as the first American ever to be a member of the orchestra) the Berlin Philharmonic under Herbert von Karajan. In 1977, Fulton made his European solo debut in Holland and, the following year, presented 20 concerts in four European countries.

Palace, and at the American Embassy in Tokyo. For 13 years he performed at the famed Warehouse Restaurant in Marina Del Rey, California on a stage specially built for him, and developed a large following that included many legendary film stars from John Wayne to Julie Andrews and fellow professionals such as Mildred Dilling. In 1983, Fulton made his Lincoln Center debut at Alice Tully Hall with a program of classical, popular and ethnic music played on three harps: a concert grand, an Irish folk harp and a grand equipped with electronic sound modification.

In his dedication to bringing the harp to as wide an audience as possible, Fulton transcribes and arranges works and has developed a special electronic system that transforms the normal sounds of the instrument, offering a myriad of possible effects, tone colors and nuances.

Leaving California in 1983 (where he had settled when only a year old, having been born in Oklahoma,) Fulton now makes his home in New York City. He concertizes and travels widely, presenting recitals, concerts, master classes and symposia across the country.

Retired Men's Club

WAKEFIELD — Pastor Rich (as he likes to be called) was the speaker at the Sept. 12 meeting of the Wakefield Retired Men's Club. Introduced by First Vice President and Program Chairman George Richards of Reading, Rev. Weisenbach expressed pleasure in that such a large and representative group of area retired men are availing themselves of the church's facilities. He commended the regularity of attendance and thanked the group for its lengthy history of service to a large number of retired men who shun that "ole rockin' chair" like the plague. He remarked further that, "You continue to honor my parking space, bless you. Even when I'm late it's still there, and that's nice during inclement weather."

The meeting opened routinely with the "meet your neighbor" handshake, followed by the Pledge of Allegiance. President Ralph Wentzel inducted one new member, Cornelius E. Dwyer of Wakefield. The attendance at 255 included first-time visitors: Sylvester L. Horne, Reading; Michael Ostrowski, Burlington; and Ken Whitehouse, Wakefield. Out-of-state visitors were present from California, Florida and Vermont. President Wentzel extended sincere thanks to the membership for its loyalty and cooperation during his term in office. A special thank-you was reserved for the Executive committee. He then called on past president Tom Coughlan of Melrose, to install the officers for the '84-'85 year as follows: president, Leslie E. Merrifield, Middleton; first vice president, George M. Richards, Reading; second vice president, Frank L. Day, Reading; secretary, Alfred E. Webber, Wakefield; treasurer, Charles M. Strauss, Melrose; and registrar, Ralph H. Wentzel, Wakefield.

A token presentation for services rendered was made to the outgoing president by Tom Coughlan. With a minimum of ceremony, the gavel changed hands and the meeting continued as usual. In the absence of John Griffin, the Sick and Visitation Committee report was read by Frank Day. George Richards' reading of the "birthday boys" list showed 14 of 48 responding. Tom Coughlan's door prizes were won by Lew Batchelder, Lynnfield (pen) and Clifton Luke, Melrose (key case).

The amens to some of Paul Richmond's "tho'ts for the day" would make one think they were at an old southern revival meetin'.

New uniforms for Girl Scouts

A new Adult Girl Scout uniform has been introduced. It was designed by acclaimed American fashion designer Bill Blass. Blass, a member of the Fashion Hall of Fame and three-time winner of the prestigious Coty Fashion Critic's Award, created the seven-part wardrobe especially for today's active Girl Scout adult.

The ensemble elements include a modified dolman sleeve jacket; an A-line skirt; zip-front pants; and a self-belted shirt dress, all in a green dacron polycotton-blend. A green-blue-white striped polyester blouse and green acrylic cardigan sweater complete the wardrobe.

Locally, information on how to purchase the uniform can be obtained by calling Spar and Spindle Girl Scout Council at (617) 689-8015.

"How about if I show you?" she said, smiling, hesitatingly.

I nodded cheerfully, and followed her back to the main road. She had obviously lived on Cuttyhunk for a while, and knew much about its history. She explained that the principal means of getting to and from the island is the M-V Alert, a ferry from the port of New Bedford, which arrives and departs several times a week.

"It's a big event for the people on the island when the Alert comes in," she said, chuckling, "which is an indication of how exciting things are around here."

She said that the chief modes of transportation around the island since there were only a few old automobiles, were mopeds and feet. "During the war," she added, "there were only two automobiles on the island. We had a one hundred percent crash rate. Both cars hit head on one night."

I asked her where the other half of the road at the fork I had encountered earlier went to, and she confirmed that it does indeed circle the island to the west end.

"There are lots of wild deer that run around the island," she remarked. "They sleep during the day and hunt for food at night. There aren't many trees on the island because the deer eat them before they can grow. There's also some sheep grazing, which explains why we burn the brush. We try to keep the grass green."

She picked me up on the way I pronounced "Cuttyhunk."

"People on the island say Cutty-HUNK," she explained. "Mainlanders say CUTTY-hunk."

I laughed at the way she twisted her mouth on the last syllable, then inquired as to what the islanders buy with their money. "We only spend money on food. There are no bars. Everything is shipped in on the ferry. The summer season starts on June fifteenth. About forty people live on the island all year round. Even year round residents bolt for a couple months during the winter. There's nothing to do but work on their houses and drink."

She asked me how I got to the island and I told her about the Carioca anchored in the pond. We walked up an old, semi-concrete road that leads to the highest point on the island, passing the town hall, the library and a one-room schoolhouse on the left, and the island's only church on the right. They resembled 17th century colonial Boston. She explained that in 1872 the schoolhouse was built, and that same year the library was located in the Town House which was built to house the weights and measures.

"The schoolhouse has about eight students," she noted, "and two teachers, a husband and wife team. John and Nancy Hornbach. Across the street is the church, which closes down in the winter."

On top of the church rested an old weathervane in the shape of a fish. The N.S.E. and W. were all broken off, but fragments made it possible for a keen eye to still tell the direction of the wind.

We followed the concrete path, lined on each side with stone and concrete walls, past a tall, green tower, which she identified as the island's water tower. Until we reached the top of the hill. To the immediate left of the end of the road about fifty feet away, stood an abandoned concrete pillbox from World War II. At first, I thought it might have been the foundation of a house long since demolished, then my companion informed me of its real identity.

"The island was fortified during the war," she said. "Looking for German U-boats that never came."

I ran up to it and peered inside. An old rusted out turret still stood bolted to the concrete floor, but the bunker was filled with empty, bent cans and an assortment of trash, all of which had accumulated over many years. Standing on top of the bunker, I looked out over the entire west end of Cuttyhunk. Other than the grandiose mansion I had seen when I first stepped foot on the island, there were hardly any houses at all.

"That mansion with the four big chimneys belongs to Robin Moore, the famous writer," she said. "He's the island's most well-known resident, when he's here."

I gathered he travels a lot. "It was built originally as a bass fishing club over a hundred years ago," she added.

We scurried down to the massive windmill, still under construction, a few hundred feet from the bunker. Close up, it looked even more like an old airplane prop and engine, only fifty times their size. From the base of the windmill I could get a better view of the west end of the island, which consisted of myriads of rolling hills, scrub brush, grassy hummocks and rocks. My pretty guide pointed out Wash Pond, from which the island gets its fresh water; West End Pond, which was fresh water at one time until the Atlantic Ocean finally broke through the sandy barrier; Cuttyhunk Island Lighthouse and the Bartholomew Gosnold Monument. She explained that Gosnold was the English explorer who discovered Cuttyhunk in 1602 and made it the first English settlement in New England. An old tar-paper shack was next to the windmill, evidently where the workers stored their equipment, along with a beat-up dump truck and an old tractor. I looked straight up and watched puffy white clouds float idly over the titanic windmill, and at once a rush of adrenalin pumped up my body excitedly. I breathed deeply, exhaled slowly, deliberately, then gloated smugly over a sensation of total freedom, from the touch of civilization.

"It looks, and feels, like a paradise!"

We sat down on a soft, green knoll as she told me about the history of Cuttyhunk Island. Cuttyhunk is a shortened form of the Indian name "Pocutohunk-unnoh," which in Algonquin means point of departure, or land's end.

"According to Louise Haskell, who spent twenty-six years on this island teaching at our school and who compiled the only history of the island," my new friend continued, "when the great ice sheet that covered the northern part of the world thousands of years ago started to melt along Cape Cod, it came in contact with the Gulf Stream or the North Atlantic Drift, which is a current of warm water flowing north eastward about one hundred miles from Cuttyhunk, dropping the earth, sand, rocks and other material which it picked up along the way, and formed the Elizaeth Islands. There is a theory that at one time these islands may have been a part of Cape Cod."

"How can they be sure that the island was made from the glacier?"

"Because, according to Louise Haskell's history, the island is covered with rocks which are like those found only in the mountains of Vermont and New Hampshire. Besides, the smoothed topped, oval shaped hills over there," she pointed across the west end — "are called drumlins and are formed by glacial drift."

"How high are we?" I inquired.

"This hill is a hundred and fifty four feet above sea level," she replied. "A lot of people say this is an old Indian burial ground. To the west of Cuttyhunk is Sow and Pigs Reef where the Vineyard Sound lightship is stationed. Many ships have been wrecked out there. When Gosnold first landed here, he called Buzzards Bay 'Gosnold's Hope,' then renamed it Buzzards Bay because he saw flocks of birds flying over the bay and misinterpreted them as buzzards. Actually he saw seagulls."

"Who was the first owner of the island?"

"The first sole owner of the island was Thomas Mayhew of Watertown, who bought it in 1641. The first owner to live on the island was Ralph Earle, Jr. from Dartmouth. That was back in 1688."

My source explained that there is considerable folklore attached to the island's history too. "It has long been thought that Cuttyhunk is the scene of Shakespeare's Tempest. Gosnold was a protege of the Earl of Southampton, and so was William Shakespeare. It's very possible that Shakespeare was enamored by Gosnold's tales of his visit to Cuttyhunk. A lot of people also think that the Elizabeth Islands are named after Queen Elizabeth, but since it was an insult to be named after such a far away place back then, it seems more likely that they're named after Gosnold's sister."

It was getting late, and the sun was beginning to sink in the west. Alas, I remembered my four friends left companionless on the beach a mile back in the direction of Cuttyhunk Pond. I opted to rejoin my friends and thanked my Cuttyhunk Miss for her help.

Backtracking down the hill, I observed a giant fog bank beginning to obscure the old abandoned Coast Guard boathouse. The Carioca had vanished completely. I was sure my friends were cursing me for having taken too much time wandering around the island. Across the Canapitsit Channel, billowy patches of fog softly caressed the rocky ledges of Nashawena Island.

I looked at my watch. It was after five thirty and would be at least nine o'clock before we got back to Padanaram Village. Paul and the others were wandering around the northeast end of the island, doing some exploring of their own, when I caught up with them.

"Where in hell have you been!" one of them exclaimed, chuckling. "We thought you decided to run off with a deer. That's d-e-e-r."

"This is quite a place," I replied. "Come on, I'll tell you about it after we're moving."

We gathered our belongings and piled into the whaler. "How was the water?" I asked Paul.

"Cold."

In a few minutes we were back onto the bay, heading in a northerly direction back to South Dartmouth. It was getting late, and pretty soon it would be dark. Fewer and fewer vessels remained visible as the haze began to thicken again. We had already spent nearly seven hours on the bay. Paul and Bob exchanged their original places. After pulling in the sails and resuming speed with help from the outboard motor, Paul stood resolutely on the port deck, his face washed with the final rays of the setting sun. Thick furrows of black hair stuck to his forehead as the salt spray jetted up from the leaping bow and dampened his skin. His eyes traced the shoreline, looking for familiar landmarks. Blackness crept ominously over the bay, and for a long time nobody said a word. The extensive journey was beginning to show its tiring effects.

We're lost, I thought. We've drifted out of the way, and we're lost!

We successfully cruised the open reach with a port tack. Without the mainsail and heavy helm, we began to drift slowly in closer to land. Suddenly, Paul recognized a familiar landmark, the imposing radar tower on Colonel Green's property, confirming our course location. In less than thirty minutes the Carioca cruised into the harbor at Padanaram Village in South Dartmouth. We searched intently between the hundreds of moorings for a spot to secure the Carioca. By eight thirty, we had dropped our anchor and found ourselves safe and sound onshore. Buzzards Bay was now illuminated softly by the purplish haze of a perfect spring sunset. An image of what sunset on Cuttyhunk must have looked like flashed across my mind. It had been a glimpse of paradise, all right. I was hooked, just like Paul had told me I would be.

We drove back to Paul's house in Mattapoisett, where I slept soundly and dreamed of tomorrow's sail to Hadley's Harbor on Naushon Island.

DOLL MAKING COURSES

Jane Hillier is bringing her artistry in making teddy bears and soft-sculptured dolls and people to students at Salem State College's main campus and at Amesbury Center this fall.

A native of England, Hillier earned her bachelor's degree with honors in theatre design from Trent Polytechnic in Nottingham England — spending a semester as an exchange student at Salem State Theatre in 1980. That was when she met her husband-to-be, James Walkowiak, Auditorium Manager at Salem State Theatre.

As a specialist in puppetry while studying theatre design, Hillier became an expert in what has now become a popular art and craft medium. Recently married, Hillier moved to the United States last December. She has developed three courses for Salem State's non-credit enrichment, "Teddy Bear Construction," "Make Your Own Soft Sculpture Dolls ('Cabbage Patch' Look Alikes)," and "Soft Sculpture People."

In "Teddy Bear Construction" (at Salem, Wednesdays, Oct. 24-Dec. 5, 7-9 p.m.; at Amesbury, Thursdays, Oct. 25-Dec. 6, 7-9 p.m.) the English-born toy maker will teach participants how to make bears from commercial patterns or from original designs. Participants will be able to complete at least one teddy bear during the six week course.

FIDDLER'S CHOICE

On Saturday, October 27th, one of the pioneer bluegrass music groups, Ralph Stanley and the Clinch Mountain Boys, will be performing at the Monadnock Concert Theater in Swanzey, N.H. Ralph and his late brother Carter formed the core of the first performing bluegrass groups in the late 1940's. Together they wrote countless songs making up a large portion of the standard bluegrass repertoire. Many well-known country and bluegrass artists including Ricky Skaggs and Larry Sparks began their musical careers with Ralph Stanley as members of the Clinch Mountain Boys, and virtually every country or bluegrass performer has recorded at least one Stanley brothers' song, such as "She's More to be Pitied" or "White Dove."

Despite the passing of Carter Stanley and changes in personnel over the years, Ralph Stanley brings the same pure, lonesome mountain sound to his music. With himself on 5-string banjo, Ralph's Clinch Mountain Boys include the irrepressible Curly Ray Cline on fiddle, Charlie Sizemore and Junior Blankenship on rhythm and lead guitars, and Jack Cooke on bass.

Opening the show will be Bear Acker and Billings Gap, a well-known western Massachusetts bluegrass band that plays solid arrangements of traditional bluegrass material. This exciting double bill promises an evening of the best in bluegrass and old-time mountain music. The concert will be at the Monadnock Concert Theater, Monadnock Regional School, Swanzey, N.H. off Rte. 12, at 8:00 p.m. on October 27th.

Tickets $7.00 in advance, $8.50 at the door, children 1/2 price. Call Fiddler's Choice Music, Humiston House, 41 E. Main St., Jaffrey, N.Y. 03452, at (603) 532-8440, or Cuzin's Issac at (603) 835-2289, for further information.

BEANSTALKS

The Boston Beanstalks Tall Club will hold its fall dance "New Fall Faces" on Saturday, November 3, 8:00 P.M. — Midnight, at Heritage Hall, 177 Bedford St., (Rts. 4-225), Lexington, Ma. Women 5'10" and over and men 6'2" and over are invited. Cost is $3.00 for members and $5.00 for non-members.

The Boston Beanstalk Tall Club is a social club for tall men and women, with meetings and social events in the North, South, West and in Boston. Members receive monthly newsletters of these events.

For more information, please call 236-2147 in Boston or 259-0403 in Lincoln.

Woburn Craft Show

Local artists and craftsmen from all over the east coast will be assembled at the Woburn Mall to display their fine work from October 24 to 27.

Among these exhibitors will be the highly acclaimed Serendipity Doll Co. They will have on hand a beautiful collection of fine handmade porcelain antique reproductions and modern artist dolls.

Each doll is the product of approximately 100 hours of pouring, cleaning, polishing, designing and dressing. No detail has been overlooked from the German crystal lens eyes to the velvets and fine embroideries. A must to see for any collector or doll lover.

If you like dolls but porcelain isn't your style, feast your eyes on the cuddly and loveable babies created by Cinderella Gifts, Luce Ends and The Doll Cupboard. You'll also have an opportunity to purchase a smashing new wardrobe for all those little Cabbage Patch Kids you've recently adopted.

Speaking of adoption, Ipswich Frog Co. will have lots of uniquely adoptable foster frogs available to any loving "parents."

The show will also feature Victorian pillows, pressed pansy creations, calligraphy, porcelain and ceramic jewelry, beautifully hand tooled pine products, stained glass and many many hand crocheted and finely stitched gift items.

This would be the perfect way to kick off the Christmas shopping season. All craftsmen will be available to discuss their work and answer questions on their high quality crafts. A good time should be had by all.

DOG LOVERS WANTED

If you want a friend who is loyal, lovable and fun to be around, you should get to know a dog. October is for doglovers — October is the fourth national Adopt-A-Dog Month sponsored by Doglovers Farm for The American Humane Association and about 750 animal shelters, including the Cape Ann Animal Aid.

The Cape Ann Animal Aid has a nice selection of pups and dogs in need of loving permanent homes. When you take home a dog or pup in October, you also take home a free doggie bag of gifts, compliments of Doglovers Farm, including the Doglovers School of Dog Skills training booklet, complimentary Jerky Treats Dog Snacks and Meaty Bone Dog Biscuits and an official "pet-i-gree."

The Cape Ann Animal Aid is located at 260 Main Street in downtown Gloucester and is

ABOUT PROCRASTINATING

The staff of The Baby's Room likes to give expectant parents help in planning purchases for their new arrival. Our recommendation... don't procrastinate! Buying good quality juvenile furniture is not like buying regular furniture because you cannot afford to be waiting for it after the baby is born.

We have one of the largest warehouses on the East Coast, and actually stock over 100 styles and finishes of cribs plus even more chests and changing tables. But if the style you like best needs to be ordered, it may take between four and eight weeks.

We will be happy to take your furniture order and hold it at our warehouses until the baby's room is ready, or until after the baby is born, or until the baby is ready for the crib.

Our customer guarantee is that if there is ever any problem with ordered furniture (or if the baby arrives very early!) we will gladly loan you comparable high-quality furniture until yours is available.

For competitive prices and excellent service, come visit our beautifully decorated showrooms soon.

"Sister Mary Ignatius": controversial

By RICK PEARL

ELIZABETH FRANZ in her award-winning role as Sister Mary Ignatius

BOSTON — For the first 40 minutes of the Boston production of "Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All To You" it's hard to understand what all the controversy is about. In the final 20 minutes, however, the puzzle is cleared up.

The target of several Catholic groups as defamatory, "Sister Mary Ignatius" is author Christopher Durang's look at the teachings of an elderly nun in parochial school.

At the start, and on into the middle of the hour-long production, the dialogue is dominated by Sister Mary Ignatius herself. Even if you find the play reprehensible, personally, it should be self-evident that the performance of Elizabeth Franz in the role she originated is outstanding, nonetheless. Her philosophies and mannerisms strike a welcome cord in most people's memories, and the humor is self-inflicted. Most of the jokes are harmless enough, and many could be funny even under different circumstances.

What stirs the protest groups to new heights of frenzy is the conclusion, when a band of four former students return to stage an impromptu recital for Sister Mary Ignatius.

The recital itself continues the good-natured fun poking, with exceptionally funny visual effects provided by the two-person "donkey." When the costumes come off, however, and the people behind them reveal themselves and, eventually, the tales of their lives since parochial school, so too do the kid gloves.

At this point Durang lashes out at the teachings of the Catholic church. It is not a point that hasn't been made before, certainly, but the manner in which it is made is, perhaps, what is most disturbing.

The mood shift in "Sister Mary Ignatius" is startling, to say the least. From a light-hearted parody to a stinging rebuke, Durang doesn't have much in the way of transition.

The four former students' lives have not turned out exactly as the Catholic church would have liked them to. One woman is the mother of an illegitimate child, and the other has had two abortions. One man is gay, and the other has become an alcoholic and wife-beater. It is not these revelations that are so disturbing, but the way that the characters in Durang's play react to them. Hence the controversy.

Perhaps like a political cartoonist, Durang feels that his point can best be made with a sense of humor. Unfortunately, his play stops being funny at the key juncture. It turns instead into a quick assault.

Whether you agree with the message or not, the play's sudden mood swing is a little much. The producers may argue that it is an effective play — and, in fact, it does get people's attention. But Durang leads his audience into a trap — one that they are hard-pressed to escape from. It is exactly this bit of deviousness that he preaches against in his writing.

Perhaps like many plays that are considered controversial at the time of their release, "Sister Mary Ignatius" will prove to be a classic. If so, it will not be because of its script.

The opening play in the Charles Playhouse "doubleheader" is "The Actor's Nightmare."

All of the actors also appear in "Sister Mary Ignatius."

This is an extremely funny production, which is slightly off-the-wall, but, nevertheless, easy to laugh at.

Jeff Brooks is the "star" of the show, an understudy who has absolutely no idea what his lines are. In fact, he's not even sure he's an understudy.

There's nothing controversial about this one. You'll like it.

Sports medicine workshop

Seven Wilmington High School coaches and physical education teachers recently gathered in the school gym for a four hour workshop on sports medicine given by staff members at Choate-Symmes Health Services.

Bridget McCane, a Community Health educator, taught first aid for summer and fall sports. Mark Manfredi, physical therapist at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, covered health and preventative maintenance in sports. The two provided "hands-on" instruction in first aid and preventative maintenance techniques.

"The clinic is aimed at the coaches because they are ultimately responsible for their athletes' well-being," said Manfredi "and they feel responsible. They must decide, for instance, if a student continues playing."

Jan Cassidy, Wilmington High School physical education instructor, praised the workshop as "an excellent review", saying that the coaches had many questions because they don't have as strong a health background as the physical education teachers.

Jan Urquhart, also a physical education instructor at Wilmington added, "The 'hands-on' part, such as bandaging and carrying techniques, was a great refresher course. I think that much of the workshop information would also be valuable for the classroom teachers."

Topics covered by Mark Manfredi included proper nutritional habits and weight training as stamina builders, the importance of ample warm-up exercises and taping to prevent muscle and joint trauma during an event, protective equipment and alternative body contact techniques.

Ms. McCane included a review of CPR techniques splinting, control of bleeding, heat stroke, and how to spot injuries such as neck injuries which may not be immediately obvious.

The workshop, which included a question and answer period, addressed issues exclusive to certain sports as well as those issues relevant to all events.

Manfredi and McCane are available to conduct similar programs for coaches and physical education teachers in the Choate-Symmes service area.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Almost everyone has either heard of, or has seen 'The King and his court' in action. For those who don't know, it is the name of a 'super-duper' softball team consisting of only three men, one of whom, the pitcher, is the king.

The blinding speed and deceptive antics of the ball causes utter frustrations to the batters at the plate from which spot they generally head for the dugout because hardly anyone reaches first base.

It was my distinct pleasure to see 'The Queen and her court,' Wilmington cheerleaders at the Wilmington vs. Haverhill football game. Their attractiveness, lively cheers and routines would make any team do their best.

The Homecoming Queen was Stacey Palmer, and her court in regal splendor were, Lynette Caesar, Gina Ciampa, Lori Hanlon, Beth Heselson and Sherry Jensen.

Happiness is a by-product of an effort to make someone 'else' happy. My five year old daughter Liz asked for a quarter's worth of 'bird seed' at a garden center. The kind sales-lady looked at me then asked Liz, "how many birds do you have?" "None," she responded, "but I want to grow some."

My personal friend, Dr. Albert Kelley received the coveted 'National Paul Bunyard' award for excellence in the field of chiropody. Dr. Kelley beat out his 'arch' rival, 'Imin Paine,' from 'tight shoes,' Idaho, who was thought to be a 'shoe in.'

Dr. Kelley and his lovely wife Dot, and their beautiful daughter Patricia travelled to Washington to receive the great honor. Also presented to them was an album of 'sole music,' a shoe horn, (useful for New Year's Eve parties) and a pair of footlights from the old Metropolitan Opera House.

A panhandler asked Robert Burns for a handout. Bob dug deep in his pocket and came up with a thin dime, gave it to the poor soul saying, "Tell me, what caused you to sink so low?" The ragged looking gentleman looked at the dime then at Fr. Burns and said, "I was just like you sir, 'extravagant!'"

At the Greek Festival in Woburn, I was asked by Andy Papas, "Where you ever in Greece?" "Yes," I answered, "as a matter of fact it was last week when I slipped and fell on my garage floor."

I am happy to tell you that I spoke to a man with a refreshing sense of humor. His name is James Curley, owner of the Curley Insurance Agency in Stoneham, and a Reading resident. I told Jim that I was an insurance agent during the early 50's when I got out of the Navy. I was fired when I brought back policies I had written for 'flood insurance,' for the residents of Venice, Italy, also for the owner of a frog raising farm, in case the frogs 'croaked.'

Theresa Ryan is the new varsity swimming coach at Woburn High School. Theresa is a graduate of U-Mass. Amherst, majoring in exercise science. The co-captains of the team are, Tara O'Brien and Siobhan Curran.

Winchester High's team edged Melrose on Sept. 19, 40-36. Sandy Powers was first in the 500 free-style. Some other team members are Liz McCann, Betty Borsody, Lisa Tonszuck and Maura Dobbins.

When I was a kid my mother would say to me (when I went swimming), "If you come home drowned I'll kill you."

Any mayor, council member and every man or woman serving in public office can tell you that holding any of those positions is like dancing on a crowded dance floor. No matter how you twist, move or turn, you're bound to 'rub' someone the 'wrong' way. Louis O'Malley, after spending a long day on a sightseeing bus, returned to the hotel and asked the clerk, "sir, I'm so forgetful, will you please tell me what room I'm in?" "You're in the lobby, sir!"

My cousin Dennis Tully has been married for over twenty-five years. Maureen, his wife, asked him last night, "Why don't you bring me candy, cards or flowers like you did when we were engaged?" "Well," Dennis replied, "I don't know anyone who keeps feeding worms to a fish after he's caught it."

Dennis is doing his own cooking, washing and sewing the buttons on his shirts until he apologizes for that stupid remark.

A Sunday school teacher at St. Charles asked the little ones, "Does anyone know who Joan of Arc was?" My nephew Mark Aloisi said, "I think she was Noah's wife."

My wife Kathy said to me when I got home from work, "Woodchipper, I'm sorry I opened your letter, I thought it was mine and I steamed it open by mistake. My son Brian came home from school and said he had a part in the school play. He said he plays a man who has been married 20 years. I said to him, "keep it up son and some day you may get a 'speaking part'."

Because of this column I'm getting requests to speak at various civic and social events. Three weeks ago I spoke at the VFW Post in Beachmont, at the 'Kick Off' breakfast for the Football Players Parents Club. I probably will never be invited again because in my speech I told the nearly 3000 people present that "it's not whether the teams win or lose that counts but how the game is played. Clean, honest and fair."

It was so cold this morning I saw a chicken walking with a 'capon,' and a bumble bee with a 'yellow jacket.'

My cousin Gary Connors called the Wilmington police because while walking in the garden in the dark last night he was hit on the head. An officer was promptly dispatched who solved the case in five minutes - he stepped on the 'rake,' too.

I'm waiting for an invitation to speak to the Idaho Potato Growers Association. Walter Cronkite was to be the guest speaker but the membership voted to cancel his speech to the convention because Walter is a 'common-tator.'

My uncle John Shea is a great believer in buying American. He won't buy a Japanese car, German camera or 'French fries.'

The late Samuel Goldwyn of MGM left many literary sayings for posterity. Most of them give English teachers nightmares, while I consider them 'gems,' like 'a verbal contract isn't worth the paper it's written on.'

This chip may not go well with many of my readers, but I can't help it, I have to tell the truth of how I feel. Hunting for survival is absolutely necessary only in very rare circumstances. Hunting for the sheer joy of killing is 'wrong.' I wonder, if deer or moose were trained to shoot back, how some of those 'brave' hunters would like it.

The great Gospel singer Edmund McCue started and ended his radio program with this hymn:

"If I have wounded any soul today,
If I have caused one foot to go astray,
If I have walked in my own willful way,
Dear Lord, forgive."

Poem

Some people,
Spend their lives in darkness.
Searching not,
For the light at all.
While others,
Think they've found the light.
When really,

They haven't at all.
And there are,
Few and in between,
Sitting in the sun. That beams of light,
Naturally fall upon.

Austin students visit the Soviet Union

Ten members of the Russian classes of Austin Preparatory School of Reading recently returned from a four-week tour of Russia and England. Participating in the trip, which was organized by the Russian department of the local prep school, were John Burke of Woburn, Robert Murphy of Medford, Erik Hartel of Salem, N.H., Paul Zahornasky of Andover, and Michael Cassidy of Peabody. Also participating were five residents of Billerica: Kevin Miller, Michael MacMullin, Nick Vickers, Gerard Collins and Frederick Westaway.

In the Soviet Union the group visited Leningrad, Kiev, Odessa, and Moscow. Their first stop was Leningrad, where the grandeur of Imperial St. Petersburg has been faithfully preserved. History lessons seemed to come alive as they explored the Imperial Park at Tsarskoe Selo, where the ill-fated Nicholas and Alexandra spent their last years. There they saw the Catherine and Alexander Palaces, and acres of parkland, where Chinese pagodas, fake ruins, and other fanciful building ornament the grounds. At Peterhof, another royal residence, trick fountains installed by Peter the Great drenched visitors to the amusement of Russian and foreign visitors.

In Kiev, the native city of their Russian guide, Nadya, the local boys passed through the catacombs of the Monastery of the Caves, where miles of underground tunnels are lined with ancient chapels and the mummified bodies of old Russian saints and monks. The city also boasts of a huge new statue of the Motherland, which caps a museum recounting Russia's sufferings during World War II. At the special request of the group a side-trip was made to Baby Yar, where thousands of Jewish citizens of Kiev were executed during the war.

The group travelled by night train to Odessa, a resort city on the Black Sea, where they visited a sanatorium impressive fortress containing three major cathedrals, and numerous palaces, museums, chapels, and gardens, as well as several day trips outside the city. In Canterbury, after visiting the cathedral, they rented bicycles for several specializing in treating nervous disorders. A Soviet doctor led the tour of the facility, which uses natural methods of rehabilitation, including salt water baths and bizarre gymnastic equipment. A boat ride and an early morning swim in the Black Sea completed the itinerary in Odessa.

The Austin Russian students had their first view of central Moscow on a late night trip to Red Square to watch the changing of the guard at the Lenin Mausoleum. They returned during daylight hours to visit the Mausoleum, as well as the inside of the Kremlin, an the largest bell and the largest cannon in the world.

The days in Moscow also included a trip to Moscow University, overlooking the city on Lenin Hills, and a day-trip to Zagorsk, where the nation's largest and most holy monastery still attracts pilgrims as well as tourists. There the boys attended a church service in a 16th century church, and saw the shrine of St. Sergius, founder of the monastery.

After leaving Russia the Austin group spent ten days in London. In addition to usual sights, the students attended the theatre four times, and took hours of touring through the tiny villages of Kent. Their day in Oxford included punting on the River Cherwell. Other side-trips included Windsor and Greenwich, and a Son et Lumiere show at Hampton Court Palace, home of Henry VIII.

Austin Prep, which offers a four-year Russian program, arranges a trip to the Soviet Union once every three or four years as a supplement to its academic language program. One alumnus of this summer's trip, Kevin Miller of Billerica, is continuing his study of Russian at Tufts University, where he is a freshman this fall.

Voter information on this year's election

Q. Is there some source of information which I can use to objectively compare candidates that are running for election?

A. In addition to checking a candidate's voting record on the issues which concern you and taking advantage of opportunities to read and see what candidates have to say in interviews and debates, another source of information is the Voter's Guide which will be published as a supplement to the Boston Globe on Oct. 23. In the Voter's Guide, candidates for the U. S. Senate and Congress as well as for the State Senate and House of Representatives will answer a variety of questions prepared by the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts. Copies of the Voter's Guide may also be available at your local library.

Q. I've heard a lot about the races for President and Vice President and Senator and Congressman, but what other positions will be on the ballot in November?

A. In addition to voting for those candidates, you will also have choices for State Senator and State Representative from your district. You will also have to consider candidates for the Governor's Council (these represent eight districts,) and many counties will select a register of probate, county commissioners, and county treasurer. Two counties have vacancies for sheriff to be filled, and there is a clerk of courts vacancy in Hampshire County and a register of deeds vacancy in Bristol County. There will be no statewide referendum questions on the ballot, but many towns and cities will have one or two local questions on such matters as local exemption to certain provisions of Proposition 2½, fluoridation of water, and licensing the sale of alcoholic beverages. Check with your local officials to make certain if your town will have questions on the ballot.

Q. In a couple of months I will be 65 years old. Is there something I should do soon to make sure that my social security benefits begin as they should?

A. Yes, you should apply about three months before you retire or turn 65 in order to be receiving your benefits at the time you want them. Look in your telephone directory under "Social Security Administration" for the address and phone number of your nearest social security office where you should apply for benefits. When you go to apply for benefits, ask about Medicare hospital and medical insurance as well as social security. Bring along evidence of your birth, your social security card, the W-2 form for the last year you worked, and your marriage certificate if you are applying for a spouse or widow or widower's benefits.

Q. A business trip has become necessary for me, and I'll be out of town on Election Day. Is it too late to apply for an absentee ballot?

A. No. You can apply for an absentee ballot from your city or town clerk no later than noon of the day before the election. However, absentee ballots must be mailed both ways, or the voter who will be absent on election day can request to vote in person before that day. Some communities allow a voter to apply for an absentee ballot and then vote over-the-counter during the same visit. Be sure to check with your local election officials at town hall. If you decide to have the absentee ballot sent to you, write a letter of application including your name and address as registered, your ward and precinct if you know them, and the exact address to which you want the ballot sent, and of course, your signature. In order to be counted, the completed ballot must be received by the time the polls close on election day, Nov. 6.

This column has been prepared by the Voter Information Phone, a service of the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts. Readers may call the Voter Information Phone with questions about local, state or national government toll free at 1-800-882-1649 or questions may be sent to: League of Women Voters of Massachusetts, 8 Winter St., Boston, MA 02108.

Bike with the "T"

On Saturday, October 20, BIKES ON THE "T" will be holding a Boston "T" Party at Waterfront Park in Boston from 1 PM to 3 PM. This rally will demonstrate the need for the MBTA to allow bicycles on Rapid Transit and Commuter Rail Lines during non-rush hours.

A three-way race to determine the most practical way to take a bicycle across Boston Harbor will highlight the festivities. One group of cyclists will bicycle to East Boston from the waterfront. A second group will put their bicycles in a canoe and paddle across the Harbor, while a third group will take the MBTA's Blue Line with cardboard bikes, folding bikes and disassembled bikes.

A Boston "T" party will also be held featuring music and speeches. Cyclists in other cities have access to their Mass Transit systems. This whole effect is an attempt to win access to the Orange, Blue, Red & Commuter rail lines during weekend and non-rush hours.

This rally will take place, rain or shine.

Train Show

The Middlesex Central Railroad Club will be holding its annual model railroad show on Saturday, October 20 from 9 AM to 4 PM.

Vartanantz Armenian Church Hall at 180 Old Westford Rd. in Chelmsford. Donations are $2 single admission with children 12 and under free. For more information, call 682-1176 from 6 PM to 10 PM only.

BIKES ON THE T

met will offer odious samples for the strong of stomach while witches cackle and vampires lurk in the shadows.

Admission to the Tours of Terror will be $4 for adults and $2 for children ages 6 to 12. Reservations are not necessary. For additional information, call 283-7673.

Arlington Catholic Class of 1964 plans reunion

ARLINGTON — The Arlington Catholic High School class of 1964 is holding its 20th anniversary reunion on Saturday, Nov. 24, at the Royal Sonesta Hotel, 5 Cambridge Parkway, Cambridge.

Attorney John Carroll, who helped organize the reunion festivities, said the evening will begin with a cocktail hour from 7 to 8 p.m. and then a buffet dinner will be served, followed by dancing until midnight.

Through arrangements with the Sonesta Hotel, special room rates are available for alumni who would like to stay overnight, or make a weekend of it.

Reservations for the reunion dinner-dance must be made by Oct. 20th. Tickets are $32 per person or $64 per couple and should be sent to: John Carroll, 361 Main Street, Winchester, MA 01890.

Classmates who would like to avail themselves of the special rates at the Sonesta should make their reservations with the hotel by Nov. 12 to qualify for the discount. Those who wish to make reservations

Popular Jazz Concerts

General Programming will present Elektra Recording Artist Grover Washington Jr. and Pieces of a Dream, in concert, on Thursday, October 25th, 7:30 PM, at the Opera House on Washington Street in Boston.

On October 26th, General Programming will host MCA Recording Artists Spyro Gyra in concert at the Berklee Performance Center, 136 Massachusetts Ave., Boston at 7:30 PM.

Tickets for either show are available at the appropriate box office, all Ticketron outlets, Strawberries, Out of Town Tickets in Harvard Square and through Concertcharge: 497-1118 or Teletron: 720-3434.

From Tours of Terror to the mellow sounds of a jazz saxophonist, from model railroading locally to biking on the "T," COMING ATTRACTIONS has something for everyone. But if you know of an event of interest to all that we have overlooked, write, care of this local newspaper and wake us up. There are times when even the Unquiet Dead can't do it. But we urge you to try.

"BRIDES IN THE BATH" murderer George Joseph Smith, who drowned three of his six wives, is only one of the notorious characters depicted in the 'Chamber of Horrors' of Madame Tussaud's Wax Museum. The chamber, one of London's top visitor attractions, is this year celebrating its 200th anniversary.
